Better Transition Program Outcomes with Proven Transition Curriculum

Does your transition program comply with the law? Mandates call for a coordinated set of transition services to prepare students with disabilities for life beyond school. Many states still struggle with providing a coordinated set of services as required by IDEA.

Special educators at more than 500 organizations have found a proven system that is available online. Designed by special educators, Life Centered Education (LCE) provides a comprehensive solution for delivering a coordinated set of transition services.

Proven Results: Maplebrook School

At Maplebrook School, located in the rural foothills of the Berkshire Mountains, transition coordinators decided to implement LCE. Over two years, students improved their raw scores in daily living, self-determination, and employment skills. Remarkably, 63 percent rose from below mastery to above mastery levels.

"Maplebrook students have historically succeeded in all three of LCE's skill areas" said administrator, Scott Miller, "which speaks to the program's consistently high quality."

Making Compliance Easier

Because the creators of LCE were practicing teachers and administrators, they made sure that LCE was easy to adopt—and affordable. And they wanted to enable IEPs that specify outcomes for adult life.

Aimed at ensuring full compliance, LCE is an organized, coordinated set of transition instruction. Accessible on a fully online, secure, and intuitive platform, LCE provides 1,200 ready-made teacher-led lesson plans. Each lesson includes all an educator needs: introductory exercises, direct instruction, practice exercises, online activities, and performance evaluations.

Choose from lessons spanning a wide range of complexity levels and include your own ideas as well. Assessment results are stored in the system, readily available for IEP updates. All you need is access to the Internet. AND, an annual subscription to LCE.
